Another 14 drug arrests expected

'Operation Sundown' nets seven arrests

BY DENA BISNETTE
A cooperative effort between the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and St. Bernard Parish, La., Sheriff's Department has resulted in seven drug-related arrests.
Over the next several weeks, the undercover operation is expected to result in 14 more arrests, most of which involve local residents, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.
Peterson said the arrests began Friday at about 5 p.m. and called the investigation "Operation Sundown."
"This operation was a spin-off of 'Operation Dawnbreaker' in May 1985 and began when we picked up a St. Bernard Parish undercover officer on a faked arrest warrant," he explained.
"The only major difference on this one was that we didn't use a confidential informer as we did in two similar operations. We had the undercover man come in dry, without any local contacts, to see what kind of particular drug problem we have."
Peterson termed these arrested "a better class of violators."
Hancock County Sheriff's Investigator Alvin Laddner, who was in charge of the operation with St. Bernard Narcotics Agent Charles Loesch, said more hard drug violations were found. Operation Dawnbreaker and the similar 1984 "Operation Wake-up" netted mostly marijuana violations.
Peterson said the sheriff's department learned that cocaine is more prevalent in Hancock County than it was several years ago.

"We feel this is a very effective way to control the drug situation on our streets," he commented.
Cocaine costs about $100 to $125 per gram in this area, Loesch said.
Major Forrest Bethea, chief of special investigations for St. Bernard Parish, said the St. Bernard Sheriff's Department picked up information during the investigation that may help authorities fight the drug problems there.
He said St. Bernard authorities offered to help Hancock County last year, and feel that Hancock County can be important in their investigations because the body of a Poydras man believed to be a middle-level drug smuggler was found here near Grapevine Road off Highway 607.
Luke Rala, apparently killed by a blow to the head, was found dead July 23, 1985, a few days after leaving his St. Bernard Parish residence with a large amount of money late at night.
"Drug traffickers have no boundaries, and now we don't either. Normally undercover officers are shared from parish to parish and county to county, but now we're crossing state lines," Bethea said.
Also assisting in the investigation were the Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police Departments.
All those arrested were released on bond except one Shoreline Park resident being held for violating probation on a manslaughter charge in Louisiana.
Those arrested Friday include:

—Huewitt Parsons, 25, 104 Rue de la Salle, Waveland, charged with one count each of sale of controlled substance and possession of controlled substance (marijuana), released on $2,700 bond;
—Randy Reighter, 25, 306 Hoffman Lane, Waveland, charged with one count of sale of controlled substance (cocaine), released on $2,500 bond;
—Robin Lee Wilson, 29, 319 Skylark Drive, Bay St. Louis, charged with two counts of sale of controlled substance (marijuana) and one count of sale of controlled substance (methamphetamine), released on $5,000 bond;
—Theodore E. Hoffman, 28, 649B Hoffman Lane, Bay St. Louis, charged with one count each of possession and distribution of marijuana and delivery of controlled substance (percodan), released on $2,500 bond;
—David Troy Williams, 23, Route Two, Box 190, Perkinston, one count of sale of controlled substance (marijuana), released on $2,500 bond;
—Charlton L. Peoples, 26, Route Six, Box 568, Bay St. Louis, one count of sale of controlled substance (cocaine), released on $2,500 bond; and —Milford L. Craft, 30, Route Three, Box 3478, Bay St. Louis, Shoreline Park Subdivision, two counts of sale of controlled substances (marijuana and cocaine), being held in Hancock County Jail on Louisiana parole violation.

Former administrator, engineer discuss county unit system

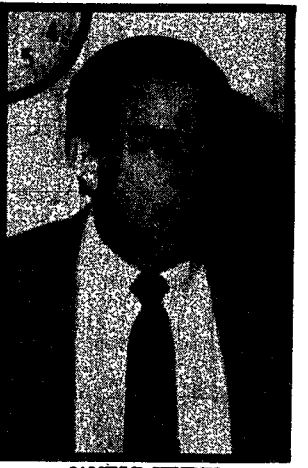

BY DENA BISNETTE
An administrator and an engineer who have worked with unit systems in other counties have provided about 100 Hancock countians with answers to some of their questions about how the system works.
G.B. "Red" Beard, a former State Aid road program engineer and mayor of Forest, and James B. Heidel, who served 10 years as administrator for Bolivar County, discussed some of the good points and bad points of the system at the Hancock County Chamber of Com-county funds is more efficient than dividing funding among five beats.

He added that road maintenance is also less expensive because more funds are used where there is more road use.
"Say one beat has a road used by about six cars a year and another has a road used by 600 cars. Both beats receive the same amount of money for maintenance."

"The road with six cars is maintained whether it needs it or not. Under the unit system, the road with more traffic gets more maintenance funds," Beard explained.
He also discussed the type of administrator needed for a successful unit system, stating that the preferred administrator is a businessman who knows something about road construction.
Beard also stressed that the administrator can not take control of county finances.
"The administrator is chosen by the board, hired by the board and controlled by the board, and if he's not doing his job, he's fired by the board," he said.
"This business of the administrator taking control from the supervisors because they're acting as a unit is not true."
"The county unit system will be no better in Hancock County if you adopt it than the Hancock County board of Supervisors want it to be."
Beard also said the system can be as limited or extensive as needed.
"Chances are the only central unit situation you want is an office for the administrator and his support personnel and a mechanic for the repair of your major pieces of equipment."
"Centralized barns are not what unit system means, although if you don't have them you have to be careful to avoid duplication in equipment purchases."
Beard also stressed the need for citizens to give the board time to make the unit system work. He said it would take at least two to three for most counties to develop a workable unit system.
Heidel agreed with Beard's description of the best type of administrator, but added that most supervisors feel less threatened if the person hired is someone with no local political ties.
"It takes a lot of pressure off the supervisors because they have an administrator to blame for everything," Heidel said.
In reality, he said, the supervisors still handle many of the calls from their constituents and do not lose

School board awards kindergarten project bid

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Rescinding an earlier motion, the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees voted Thursday to accept a bid to construct an eight-classroom kindergarten building at Waveland Elementary.
On a 3-2 vote, the board awarded a contract to Tilley Contractors and Engineers of Gulfport, who offered to complete the project for a total of $409,000.
Architect Jules Lagarde told the board he had met with a committee of board members regarding altering an original design but had determined that this would "not significantly change the cost of the building."
"This building design is what we need and will satisfy the criteria for the kindergarten program," he added.
Lagarde said considering these factors and being faced with an alternative of temporary classrooms, the school board should award the contract to Tilley.

Immediately following Lagarde's presentation, Board Member Cyril Glover read a motion to the board recommending that they rescind the April 23 motion to reject all bids and award the contract to Tilley.
Board Member L.D. Carter questioned Lagarde on whether the current bid would include masonry walls instead of frame construction.
Lagarde said the project would stay as it is presently designed.
Carter told the board he still did not think frame construction was advisable.
"We owe it to the taxpayers and to the children to get the best building possible," he added.
In addition to not being as sturdy as masonry, Carter pointed out that problems could occur if the board would not be able to get state funds in the future to repair this building.
Carter read from a state statute which said no state funds can be used in construction or repairs of a frame or predominantly frame building.

Early Childhood Coordinator James Baldree told the board he was also concerned about the frame construction planned and would encourage alternates to be investigated.
After additional discussion, Glover repeated his motion but with the addition of Board Attorney Lucien Gex's recommendation that the project should have masonry construction.
Gex did tell the board he was concerned about making substantial changes to the contract after it was awarded.
Gex said the other bidder could come to the board and say with such changes he could have submitted a lower bid.
To be completely safe, the board should reject all bids for the job in view of major changes planned, Gex said.
Lagarde said he understood and agreed with Gex from a legal point of view but added that the board needed to consider the delay of getting new bids and pursue the legal question to the Attorney General's Office if necessary.
Gex told the board he did not think the attorney general would give a

Tigers win District VIII baseball championship

By ELLIS CUEVAS
It was a battle of the sluggers as Bay High's Tigers defeated Purvis' Tornados 12-7 Friday at Poplarville to claim the District VIII Class 3-A baseball championship.
The first game of the series was a pitchers' duel on Monday in Purvis, with the Tigers edging the Tornados 2-1. Lettles Jesse Logan was on the mound for Bay High and Steven Barrett for Purvis.
Friday's game followed Wednesday's slugger contest in Bay St. Louis when Purvis edged Bay High 10-8 to even the series at 1-1.
In the deciding game on Friday Purvis, jumped to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning with the lead-off batters crossing the plate.
The Tigers came back in the bottom of first to score a run on back-to-back doubles by Jeffery Smith and Brian Laneaux, giving the Tornados a 2-1 lead.

It was three up and three down in the second inning with Logan and Barrett on the mound.
The Tigers exploded in the third inning with three hits, scoring four runs to give the local squad a 5-2 edge.
Purvis closed the gap in the top of the fourth inning, adding two runs and bringing the score to 5-4 in favor of the Tigers.
Barrett cooled the Tigers in the bottom of the fourth facing only three batters.
Coach G.L. McRaney's Tigers sprung into the scoring column in the fifth inning, scoring three runs on three singles, including one by Logan, Stace McRaney and Matt Fairconnetue.
Tiger sluggers moved the ball around the field in the sixth inning, adding four runs on four hits. Those collecting hits were Smith, Logan, Stace McRaney, and Fairconnetue.

The Tornados threatened in the top of the seventh with the first two batters reaching base by walks, followed by two base hits back to back.
The last out of the game came on a perfect strike thrown from right field by Fairconnetue to Tiger catcher Stace McRaney, nailing a Purvis runner at home plate on a close play.
The Tigers took the District title home by a 12-7 final score, winning the series 2-1.
Logan was the winning pitcher for the Tigers in the first and third games of the series with Purvis. Barrett pitched all but three innings of the three game series for Purvis, who were the 1985 District champs.
Bay High's next action will be on the road against West Lauderdale on more definite answer.

Board Member Linda Penrose said she felt that $52 per square foot was still "exceedingly high" compared to the costs of what other contractors are charging for building classrooms.

Carter and Penrose voted against the motion to accept Tilley's bid. School Board President Betty Diboll broke the tie with a vote in favor of the motion.

While the board voted to rescind the motion rejecting the bid, no action was taken on another motion passed at the April 23 meeting in which the board agreed to hire another architect if Lagarde did not present a more acceptable design within 10 days.

"In my opinion, due to the fact of only two bids, one being from a contractor that has experience in building classrooms and the other not, I feel the system has been done a wrong," Carter said following the meeting.

"I feel it was the responsibility of the architect to beat the bushes to extract more bids from people that can and have built kindergarten classrooms in the past," he added.

In a telephone interview Thursday afternoon Dr. Roger Oge said he had serious questions whether or not the public's money was being appropriately spent in this particular case.

Oge will begin a three-year contract as school superintendent in July.

touch with the community.

"The unit system makes the supervisors more accessible to the people," he explained.

He said an administrator is most effective when he has a close working relationship with the chancery clerk, since their duties are related and may at times overlap.

Heidel said that Bolivar County, operating in the red when the conversion to the unit system was implemented, saved $80,000 just on maintenance of county building the first year through coordination and planning.

"That is the key—coordination and planning. You have to ask two questions. Where are you now and where do you want to go from here?"

Shoreline man dies in car-train collision

BY DENA BISNETTE

A 28-year-old Shoreline Park man was killed Thursday night when his vehicle collided with a train in Henderson Point.

According to Harrison County Sheriff Larkin Smith, Mark Vidrine was killed when his vehicle was dragged about a mile by a L&M Railroad freight after the collision on the Third Street.

Vidrine was apparently heading north on Third Street and was attempting to cross the tracks when the accident occurred shortly after 10 p.m.

The car ended up on the railroad bridge over the Bay of St. Louis because the train was unable to stop.

Harrison County Coroner Steve Delahoussey pronounced Vidrine dead at the scene.

A dog riding in the car with Vidrine was also killed.

The cause of the accident is still under investigation.

ROADS TO NOWHERE?

Though Mississippians, through their personal traditions and natures, continue to keep alive this state's image as a hospitality state, most county governments have fallen short of maintaining this image for those visitors who stray from main highways and venture through the countryside over secondary roads.

This writer, who often tracks agricultural stories to their roots in the innermost parts of rural Mississippi, has become accustomed and fairly adept within our complex rural road system to nowhere.

Likewise, most rural residents in out-of-the-way locales probably could find their way home at midnight on the darkest night with all power lines down and batteries played out.

But what about this state's rural public accommodation for visitors or emergency vehicles and teams when it comes to placing and maintaining signs on the vast network of secondary roads that serve the rural areas so essentially?

While in a county in central Mississippi recently I visited an attraction maintained by the State Park system after easily finding it by following an adequate sign system from the nearest interstate.

But then I decided to take the backroads homeward and diagonally criss-cross a county in my never ceasing quest for interesting places and situations off the beaten paths.

Fortunately, the sun was shining and it was late in the day. I crossed the county on quite good, hard-surfaced roads relying on a sense of direction only, as I often am forced to do.

There were no road signs until I reached a US highway.

Of course, almost all travelling Mississippians are used to this.

Only four counties in Mississippi have seen fit to name all of their roads and put signs on them for the benefit of the public.

These are Hinds, DeSoto, Harrison, and Adams counties with their higher than usual overflow populations into the countryside from such cities such as Jackson, Memphis, Gulfport, Biloxi, and Natchez, respectively.

Washington County, with Greenville as its largest population center, embarked on a progressive program of rural marking some years ago utilizing a complex numbering and mileage system from county lines.

The scheme was the forerunner for an intended system for the whole state that fell by the wayside like many of the signs in Washington County because road numbers alone were too lack-luster and both the numbers and mileages to the county line meant too little to visitors from beyond the county.

So today this system reportedly is not being maintained.

The heart of the road marking problem seems to lie somewhere between Mississippi lawbooks and local attitudes concerning signs, because Mississippi has a law providing for the marking of this state's road system through the State Aid Division of the Mississippi State Highway Department.

Under the provision the state would be responsible for putting the signs in place and the counties would be responsible for their maintenance.

County governments have been reluctant to provide necessary maintenance funding. The history of vandalism in this state has been a discouraging factor. So we've done little, or nothing, to mark our rural road system in a whopping 94 percent of the system over the entire state.

This is in sharp contrast to many states and countries in modern times who have seen fit to erect helpful signposts at every intersection motorists encounter in unfamiliar localities.

Hopefully, Mississippi's beautiful backroads one day will better beckon visitors to new discoveries made possible by a comprehensive signboard or road marking system, and our hospitality will be beneficially underscored by today's more mobile population.

The dietary guidelines released in 1980 have undergone years of review and have recently been officially approved and re-released. The updated guidelines from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Information Service are more favorable toward livestock, egg and dairy products.

Basically the guidelines recommend the following: more variety in meats, more fiber, more starch, less sugar, less salt, less fat, less alcoholic beverages and less weight.

We've known for a long time that the more variety in meals, the better chance we have of getting all the nutrients we need each day. No food is perfect in providing daily requirements so a variety is essential to good health.

For variety, choose fruits; vegetables, whole-grain products; milk, cheese and other milk products and meats, poultry, fish, eggs, dry beans and peas.

Fiber and starch are important in the diet for energy and to aid in digestion.

Fiber is beneficial in weight control diets because it delays hunger. Starch is also helpful in counting calories since it contains fewer calories than fat does.

Be sure to include whole-grain bread and cereals, fruits, vegetables, dry beans and peas in your menu plans. They're good sources of fiber and starch.

Sugar provides many calories and much much less. Avoid too much sugar by cutting back on foods that contain large amounts of sugar, like candies, cookies, cakes and soft drinks.

Also read labels to see how much sugar they contain. Several types of sugar are used in products. When the name sucrose, glucose, maltose, dextrose, lactose, fructose or syrup appears first in the list of ingredients on product labels, there's a lot of sugar in the product.

FBI assists Highway Patrol

JACKSON—The Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol has received a criminal personality profile compiled by the FBI in connection with the October 8, 1985, murder of Stacie Dianne Pannell in Booneville.

Commissioner of Public Safety James L. Roberts Jr. said information contained in the eight-page study should be useful in solving the six-month-old murder of the Northeast Mississippi Junior College student.

"The unsolved murder of this young woman continues to be of major concern to this agency's investigators. We are hopeful the information contained in the profile report will provide the link necessary to identify and connect the murderer to the murder," Roberts said.

The criminal personality profile was prepared by an agent with the profiling and consultation program at the National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime, Behavioral Science Unit of the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va.

Major Walter Tucker, chief investigator of the Highway Patrol, said information in the profile was submitted with the instruction that "It is provided exclusively for your investigative assistance and should not be disseminated except to other criminal justice agencies with a legitimate investigative or prosecutorial interest in this matter," as stated in the report.

Tucker said "We are currently studying the contents of the profile and will be delving into some unexplored areas of investigation based on the information contained therein."

"We requested that the profile be compiled in an effort to do everything possible to solve this horrible crime. The profile is one of many investigative techniques that we have employed in examining the evidence of this case," Tucker said.

He said specific categories of study in the profile are victimology, autopsy report, crime assessment, offender profile, and post-offense behavior.

High Blood Pressure Month observed in May

The State Department of Health encourages all Mississippians to have their blood pressure checked during May, National High Blood Pressure Month.

In Mississippi, one in three blacks and one in four whites are hypertensive; many are unaware they have high blood pressure.

Although headaches, dizziness, nose bleeds, and shortness of breath may accompany high blood pressure, most hypertensives experience no symptoms of ill health.

"High blood pressure well deserves its name as a silent killer," said Dick Smith, director, Hypertension Control Program. "Getting your blood pressure checked is still the only way to know if you have hypertension."

A blood pressure examination produces two different readings.

"The first sound the nurse hears as the blood pressure cuff deflates is the pressure of the heart contracting. This is the systolic pressure and should be 140 or less," Smith explained. "The last sound the nurse hears as the cuff continued to deflate is the pressure of the heart at rest. This is the diastolic pressure and should be 90 or less."

Uncontrolled high blood pressure can lead to stroke, heart attack and failure, and kidney failure. Fortunately, hypertension can easily be treated to prevent such problems.

Some hypertensives can regulate their blood pressure through exercise, weight control, and a low-salt diet; others require medication.

"Once you start a blood pressure medication, you should never stop taking it without discussing it with a doctor," Smith said. "Remember, the medicine is keeping your blood pressure controlled."

He also warns against treating high blood pressure with folk medicines such as vinegar or garlic salts: "These home remedies do not work and can cause other problems."

Smith encourages all Mississippians to visit their private physicians for routine blood pressure examinations.

For a small fee, the State Department of Health Hypertension Control Program also provides screening, diagnosis, treatment or referral for treatment, and follow-up on compliance—either in cooperation with patients' physicians or as a total management effort.

Priority patients are in high risk groups: black males and females 18 to 55 years of age, white males 20 to 55 years of age, and those in rural, medically underserved areas who are at or near poverty level.

"There is no excuse to delay an examination," said Smith. "With treatment, hypertensives can live longer, healthier lives."

Southern Company reports earnings increase

"Our financial performance was down slightly during the first quarter of this year, but our results continue to reflect the strong gains we made in 1985," Southern Company President Edward L. Addison said.

The Southern Company (NYSE: SO) is the parent firm of four electric utilities: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, and Mississippi Power. The Southern Company's common stock is the most widely held electric utility stock in the nation and is one of the 20 most widely held corporate stocks in America.

Addison announced that earnings for the first quarter of 1986 reached $196 million—up $446,000 from the comparable period last year. However, earnings per share of 71 cents for the first three months of this year were down seven cents from the same period in 1985, reflecting a greater number of shares outstanding.

For the full 12 months ending March 31, 1986, net income totaled $630 million or $3.13 per share—an increase of $61 million or seven cents per share from the corresponding period a year ago.

Reviewing these latest results, Addison said "...increases in the electricity needs of customers across the region and continuing cost control were primary factors in maintaining the company's financial position."

Electricity use by commercial customers—offices, stores, and other nonmanufacturing businesses—rose 2.8 percent during the first three months of the year, totaling 5.1 billion kilowatt-hours. Industrial requirements for electricity grew one percent to 9.4 billion kilowatt-hours. Residential consumption of electricity also increased, climbing 2.5 percent to 6.5 billion kilowatt-hours.

The energy needs of wholesale customers in the region—municipalities and cooperatives—were up 48 percent to 3.7 billion kilowatt-hours.

Scheduled sales of energy under long-term contracts with neighboring utilities totaled 5.5 billion kilowatt-hours for the first three months of 1986, down 4.4 percent from the same period in 1985.

Overall, sales of electricity to customers of the Southern electric system were up 4.5 percent in the first three months of 1986.

The Mississippi Railway and Transportation Museum, Inc. located at Port Bienville in Ansley is again in operation on Saturdays and Sundays.

The train's engine, a 1925 Baldwin Steam Locomotive brings back many memories to those of us who were reared near the L&N Railroad until the steam engines were replaced with diesel engines.

The passenger cars are also from an early era when traveling by train was the main mode of transportation in America.

It is a good family type of outing and trips are scheduled at 1, 3, and 5 p.m.

It is a big thrill for youngsters who have never had an opportunity of riding on a train.

We realize there may be some newcomers in the area, and it is easy to find Port Bienville.

From Bay St. Louis or Waveland, take US-90 West, and continue on US-90 at the intersection of Highway 607. As you pass the truck scales on US-90, take a left at the Ansley Road, as signs indicate the direction. Take a right at Port Bienville just before you cross the railroad tracks.

Tickets for the 45-minute ride are adults $5; senior citizens $4; students $4; children under 12 $3.

The turnout for the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Morning Edition was very good.

This shows a concern by local residents seeking information as to whether our county should go to a Unit System.

With the election scheduled for June 3, there is no time to waste.

The chamber's task force has been working very hard in gathering information about how a Unit System operates.

One thing which appears to stand out is the fact that a Unit System has to be designed for the needs of the county.

Another fact is that a Unit System of government or any other type takes cooperation of all officials in order to operate efficiently.

Dear Editor:
It is most gratifying when our political system works as it idealistically should.

A potentially dangerous drainage problem at 116 Ramoneda Street was reported to the supervisor, Beat

I would like to commend the supervisor, Beat 4, and those workmen who very professionally made these repairs.

WAR ON UGLINESS—The Hancock County Extension Service, in cooperation with the Hancock County Beautification Committee, is sponsoring an "Operation Mail Box" project in four geographical areas. The project was a success last year, according to Darlene Underwood, county home economist. She hopes more residents will become involved in the project this year. It could also be good competition to see who could have the best display on a street. The photo above shows the mail box of last year's chairman Margie Welsh. Matters of Health

SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS CAN PREVENT MOST EYE INJURIES

Q: My son recently injured his eye playing baseball. How can people avoid such eye injuries?

A: Each year, some half a million Americans are victims of eye injuries.

Industrial accidents are the most common cause of eye injuries, and accidents to children's eyes rank second. Today, with more and more people getting involved in sports, eye specialists have noted an increasing number of eye injuries connected with sports and other recreational activities.

More than 90 percent of all eye injuries could have been prevented. Seemingly minor eye injuries can cause blindness so prompt treatment of all eye injuries is extremely important.

A few simple precautions may save your eyes from injuries. The first and most obvious is to protect your eyes with appropriate safety glasses or eyeguards whenever you play racquetball or work in an area where fragments of flying metal or chemicals could damage your eyes.

Although all eyeglass lenses now must be made of impact-resistant glass or plastic, they often are not strong enough to withstand the force of a fast-moving ball or a stone thrown by a lawnmower.

Working outdoors or in a home workshop, or engaging in athletic activities often requires a sports eye protector or industrial safety lenses.

Industrial-quality safety glasses can be obtained either with non-corrective lenses - if you don't normally wear glasses - or with prescription lenses.

Sports eye protectors, which can be made with or without corrective lenses, are goggle-type molded eyeglasses.

Heavily chlorinated swimming pools can cause mild irritation of the conjunctiva, an annoying but not serious condition. This problem can largely be avoided by wearing watertight swim goggles.

To guard against chemical burns or splashes, students who work in school labs should wear safety glasses.

Parents should stress also to their children the dangers of scissors, knives and sticks, and they shouldn't allow children to play with bows and arrows, darts, BB guns or firecrackers.

In the event you do injure your eyes, keep in mind the following emergency first-aid procedures:

* For a speck in the eye, lift the upper eyelid out and down over the lower eyelid and allow tears to wash out the speck. If the speck doesn't wash out the speck. If the speck doesn't wash out, keep the eye closed, bandage it lightly, and see an ophthalmologist. Don't rub your eyes.

* For a blow to the eye, apply cold compresses immediately for 15 minutes and again each hour as needed to reduce pain and swelling. Discoloration or "black eye" could indicate internal damage to the eye and requires the attention of an ophthalmologist.

* For a chemical burn, flush the eye immediately with water, keeping the eye open. Do this continuously and gently for 15 minutes, holding your head under the faucet or pouring water into the eye from a clean container. Don't bandage the eye, but do see an ophthalmologist immediately after irrigating the eye, because serious eye damage can result from chemical burns.

* For punctures of the eye or eyelid, bandage the eye lightly and see an ophthalmologist immediately. Don't rub the eye.

16th Section rent increasing, Molpus reports

Secretary of State Dick Molpus has reported a 28 percent increase in rent on Sixteenth Section leases during the last two years. In making the report, Molpus stated that lease proceeds from surface leases had grown from $6.9 million in 1982 to $8.9 million in 1985. "This increase is the result of concerted efforts on the part of the great majority of school boards in Mississippi to properly guard the school children's trust currently as well as to remedy past abuses," Molpus said.

"I consider this development a report card for the first eighteen months of this administration. It is encouraging to see that efforts on the part of the Secretary of State's Office, as well as local school districts, are literally beginning to pay dividends. This is an indication that our program is working and that we are on our way to substantially increasing the money available to improve our public schools," Molpus stated.

The figures were presented in a recently released "Sixteenth Section State Lands Biennial Report."

The financial figures were drawn from data of the State Department of Education. The period covered in the report began with July 1, 1983 and concluded with June 30, 1985. This period covered the first two steps in the four-step process designed to increase revenues from the Sixteenth Section School Trust lands by the Secretary of State. The four-step program began in 1984 and will be concluded July 1, 1986. At that time all leases, including those executed prior to 1978, will have been reviewed for adequate consideration and will have been renegotiated for a fair rental or will be in the process of renegotiation.

In early 1984 the Secretary of State projected an increase from $8.8 million to $21 million on Sixteenth Section surface leases by the end of FY 88. Molpus stated, "We are definitely heading toward our $21 million goal. Leases are being renegotiated statewide with some individual counties showing dramatic and pronounced increases. We are, however, realizing a drop in farm land leases." The recent 40 percent decline in farm land prices is having an adverse impact on certain Sixteenth Section land values and does give us cause for concern," Molpus concluded.

To date, there has been one lawsuit filed against one school district for failing to comply with the law. Molpus said, "While I am hopeful that no further lawsuits will have to be filed, we remain committed to insure that local school boards protect the school age children's interest on Sixteenth Section matters."

The Biennial Report presents the first accurate total number of sections and acres on a statewide, as well as district bases. The State has 1,063 Sixteenth Sections of varying sizes for a total of 642,638 acres. This acreage is managed by 100 school districts in 67 counties south of the Chickasaw-Choctaw Boundary Line.

IN CONGRESS By Cong. Trent Lott

DISAPPOINTMENT WITH OUR ALLIES

It has been interesting in the wake of the United States' bombing strikes on Libya to study how our allies have acted before the raid and reacted in the aftermath.

I was extremely disappointed in many of our European and other allies around the world who not only refused to help us in making a preemptory strike on terrorism but were critical of President Reagan and the U.S. for doing what needed to be done to get at the root cause of terrorism all over the world.

At least Great Britain stood up with us, and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was magnanimous in her strong support of not only our right, but our obligation to take action against these terrorists. In a letter to her afterward, I told Mrs. Thatcher that her support was indispensable in our efforts to show that democratic nations must demonstrate united strength and resolve to combat terrorism, especially when this kind of brutal offensive is clearly state-sponsored and planned on a massive scale.

Her bold and courageous decision to help the United States at this time has reaffirmed the strong faith I have in our alliance with Great Britain.

But once again, France bailed out when it was really needed. President Francois Mitterand wouldn't even permit our American F111 bombers overflight rights to retaliate against Libyan terrorism. That refusal forced some of our planes to fly additional 2,400 miles to carry out their mission.

While I believe the U.S. mission in Libya was successful, France's inability to provide simple permission for overflight for our self-defense strike is a blow to the efforts of free nations to present a united front against terrorism.

IN A LETTER TO PRESIDENT MITTERAND

I told him that I find it difficult to understand why his country, which repeatedly has been the setting for brutal terrorist attacks, would create an obstacle to retaliation against these repeated, state-sponsored attacks.

I also questioned his assessment that retaliation is synonymous with escalation and the implication that toleration of unilateral attacks is an acceptable policy.

It will be a long time before I forget France in this particular instance.

But in the aftermath of the strikes against Libya, many of our allies are beginning to show a little backbone. They are beginning to throw Libyans out of their countries, and they may even be moving toward economic sanctions against Libya.

The problem with terrorism is not just an American problem. It's a worldwide problem, and it's particularly a problem for Europe because many of these terrorist bombings have occurred in their airports or in their countries.

Maybe our allies are beginning to get the message now, and maybe they realize that President Reagan did the right thing—the only thing that could be done to stop this rash of terrorism.

If our allies will realize that it is not in anyone's interests to tolerate these terrorist actions and will pledge to work together, I am convinced that we will be able to get the needed results.

APPLAUDING MERIT PAY

Teachers were applauding, and that was good news.

They were applauding the statement that the time has come to "Pay better teachers better salaries."

The suggestion was being offered by Governor Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, the recognized national leader for merit pay for teachers, and teachers were applauding his suggestion.

The scene took place at the Annual Membership Meeting of the Mississippi Economic Council in Jackson. Governor Alexander was on hand as the keynote speaker, and his topic was "Searching for Excellence in Economic Development." Education, he was saying, was essential to economic advancement. And he was calling for better schools through better instruction.

In Tennessee, his teachers are following a "career ladder" plan which provides incentive pay for teachers as they move up the ladder. In effect, those who move up the ladder by improving performance are paid more than those who remain at the bottom.

Too many Mississippi teachers oppose the incentive pay principle. They want equal pay for all teachers, regardless of performance.

You could have expected the teachers in the Council audience to applaud the Governor. They included two teachers being honored for having been selected as STAR Teachers by their students for 10 years. They also included twenty teachers named this year as STAR Teachers by the top twenty STAR Students in Mississippi.

And they included two teachers whose high school teams were on hand to compete for the championship of the First Annual Mississippi Free Enterprise Games sponsored by the Council.

These teachers are already recognized as among the best Mississippi has to offer. They deserve merit pay.

Q. Within the next few weeks, we will sell our house and buy another, which we'll rent to the present owners for six months while they wait for their new house to be completed.

In the meantime, we will rent another place to live in. Can we deduct depreciation and operating expenses on our new house while we rent it out? If we do, will we lose the right to defer the capital-gain tax from the sale of our old house?

A. You can write off depreciation and maintenance costs for the period of time your new house is rented. Since you're buying that house as a principal residence, you can defer the tax on the gain from selling your old house provided you move in within two years from the date you sell the house you now own.

Q. Can I set up an Individual Retirement Account based on the income I receive as the beneficiary of my husband's pension?

A. No. Only the income you receive as compensation from employment - not what you get from a pension - qualifies you to establish an IRA. Your maximum contribution: $2,000 a year.

The 79th Division was known as the Lorraine Cross Division and was awarded France's Unit Citation of the Croix De Guerre for its assistance in combat to that country.

Dry weather delays striped bass program

While residents of south Mississippi have enjoyed an unseasonably cool, dry spring, these uncharacteristic weather patterns have delayed the beginning of the fourth year of the Mississippi-Alabama Cooperative Striped Bass Program sponsored by the National Marine Fisheries Service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"Usually spring is a wet season, and the increased water flow at dam spillways in our region causes striped bass to congregate in this fast-moving water for spawning," explained Larry Nicholson, striped bass project leader at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs.

"This spring's dry weather has reduced the water flow in area rivers, and it has been difficult for fish hatcheries to locate the necessary fish," Nicholson said. "In addition, the unseasonably cool weather slows down egg development after the fish spawn."

These conditions have delayed the availability and transfer of an expected 500,000 day-old striped bass fry from the Alabama State Fish Hatchery at Marion, Ala. to GCRL's semi-closed intensive culture facility from mid-April to the end of the month.

In June, when the fish reach an average length of 2 inches, they will be transferred to the Claude Petet Mariculture Center (CPMC) in Gulf Shores, Ala. where they will remain until late fall, when they will be tagged and released into Mississippi and Alabama coastal streams.

Pond improvements being made at CPMC should enhance the outcome of this year's program, Nicholson noted.

"Installation of plastic pond liners should alleviate seepage problems and improve algae control and overall water quality," Nicholson said.

During 1985, about 400,000 fingerling striped bass were released into Mississippi's coastal tributaries, including about 9,000 tagged striped bass from the cooperative two-state effort. The other fish were 1 to 2 inch fingerlings reared at the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service's National Fish Hatcheries in Meridian, Miss. and Carbon Hill, Ala. in support of GCRL's restocking programs.

In spite of rearing problems which have hampered the cooperative striped bass program during the past two years, Nicholson feels that recent reports of striped bass catches in south Mississippi reflect the success of various stocking efforts undertaken by the laboratory since 1967 to reestablish natural striped bass populations in local waters.

This year's spring striper run has yielded fish between 6 and 11 pounds caught on shrimp and live bait. In January, a tagged striped bass released in October 1980 as a 6-inch fingerling was caught in the east Pascagoula River weighing 20 pounds and measuring 31 inches long.

Nicholson said that during 1985, GCRL received 329 calls reporting striped bass catches. Whether a fish is tagged or not, catch information is vital to fisheries officials who are evaluating the benefits of several stocking programs.

Any fisherman catching a striped bass in Mississippi waters should call GCRL collect at 875-2244 to report information concerning length, weight and condition of the fish, where and how the catch was made and the identification number if the fish was tagged.

OCEANOGRAPHER/ASTRONAUT— Dr. Paul Scully-Power, left, a payload specialist on Space Shuttle mission 41-G, pauses with Dr. Jerry McCall, director of the National Data Buoy Center, following Scully-Power's address to the Marine Data Systems International Symposium. McCall co-chaired the event with Capt. James Koehr, Commander, Naval Oceanography Command. The symposium, held April 30-May 2 in New Orleans, was sponsored by the Gulf Coast Chapter of the Marine Technology Society.

Coordinate men, machines in space, astronaut urges

Dr. Paul Scully-Power, the first oceanographer to fly in space, addressed the opening session of a Marine Data Systems International Symposium Wednesday in New Orleans.

The MDS '86 symposium, which concluded Friday was sponsored by the Gulf Coast Chapter of the Marine Technology Society to help promote a growing interest in the gathering and utilization of data from the oceans.

Scully-Power was a payload specialist on the Space Shuttle 41-G mission in October 1984. Now with the Naval Underwater Systems Center, he is also an instructor in the astronaut office at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

In his remarks, Scully-Power told the symposium that in the field of remote sensing, manned spacecraft and unmanned satellites are important.

"The real strength and possibility of remote sensing from space is to put together both manned and unmanned systems. There is no conflict between a manned spacecraft and a satellite because they do entirely different things. In fact, rather than being in opposition they're very much complementary. Use man with his intuition, capability and technical training to make the discoveries and then design machines specifically to exploit that discovery," he said.

During his visit to the area, Scully-Power also addressed Navy personnel at the National Space Technology Laboratories and a meeting of the Navy League.

Co-chairman for the MDS '86 symposium were Dr. Jerry McCall, director of the National Data Buoy Center, and Capt. James Koehr, Commander, Naval Oceanography Command. Both NDBC and CNOC are headquartered at NSTL.

Library seeking assistance in 60-volume collection

The Waveland Public Library, a branch of the Hancock County Library System is seeking donations of any amount towards a total of $500 as matching funds to obtain an Andrew Mellon Foundation grant to purchase the 60-volume Library of America series.

Recognizing the serious financial constraints on many libraries and their difficulties meeting needs with inadequate book budgets, the library of America, with the support of the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, has instituted a two-year program to provide 1,000 community libraries with the Library of America collection.

The 60-volume set is an outstanding series of editions of this country's foremost authors. 'American Heritage' has described the series as the most ambitious effort ever undertaken to put the best of American literature into the hands of the general reader.

The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation has contributed $500,000 to establish the program, which is awarding grants of $500 each to 1,000 small public libraries which can raise $500 in community donations.

A library's matching grant can come from any source: individuals, businesses, community groups or local or regional foundations. Such contributions are tax deductible for individuals and corporations.

A special bookplate will be placed in each volume to honor the local donor(s), and certificates citing the donor will be provided to the library.

Military Mention

SEAMAN DAVIS
Navy Seaman Recruit Michael S. Davis, son of Linda T. Davis of Route 5, Picayune, MS, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command Great Lakes, IL.

During Davis's eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 65 basic fields.

Davis's studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

He joined the Navy in March 1986.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your legal rights.)

Q. I messed up, I admit that. The police stopped me on the way home from a party and took me to jail for a breath test. They couldn't get the machine to work, but charged me with D.U.I. anyway. Am I guilty?

A. The judge will have to tell you that. If you plead not guilty before the municipal or justice court judge assigned to hear your case, the judge will first hear from the officer who arrested you.

Absent the results of a test by a machine, the officer may still testify as to what he observed about your conduct, driving, speech and stability at the time he stopped you.

You may then question the officer about anything he has said or make a statement in your own behalf. Then it's up to the court. The judge doesn't have to have the machine evidence to find you guilty.

Q. I've heard a lot of talk and seen so much in the newspapers. Just what are the age restrictions on buying beer, wine and whiskey in Mississippi?

A. Until Sept. 30, 1986, the laws are the same as they have been. A person must be 18 before he or she can legally be sold or given beer or light wine.

A person must be 21 before he or she can be sold whiskey, or other liquor or wine.

Beginning Oct. 1, 1986, the law changes. A person will have to be 21 before he or she can lawfully buy any beer, liquor or wine.

THE COUPON BOX—Mona and Bernice Favre of Waveland are pictured going through the manufacturers coupon exchange box at the Hancock County-Bay St. Louis Library on Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis. Kiln and Waveland libraries will soon be offering the service.

Library provides coupon exchange

A manufacturers coupon exchange has been established at the Hancock County-Bay St. Louis Library, according to Betty Evans, library staff member who maintains the coupon exchange box.

The box which usually contains more than a 1,000 coupons is divided into three categories: food items, non-food items and dairy products.

There is only one rule concerning the box, according to Evans. She asks that anyone searching through the coupons discard any that are out-of-date which she may have missed. "Also, it is not necessary to bring in coupons to use the exchange," said Evans, "but we do appreciate people bringing us coupons they cannot use since others may find them valuable."

"Many people make a weekly visit to the library to return books and look for coupons they can use," says Evans. Since the library is located within a block of three major grocery stores, Evans notes that many people stop at the library on their way to shop.

The coupon exchange has become so popular that the Kiln and Waveland Libraries will soon be offering the service, she added.

Outlook for tourism business good

With the summer tourist season approaching, signs indicate that Mississippi's tourism business for this year will show marked improvement over 1985, according to Barbara Barrett, Tourism Division director for the Mississippi Department of Economic Development.

"Our first quarter inquiry figures are up 33.5 percent over last year," Barrett said. Between January and March, 1986, the division received over 18,000 telephone and mail requests for information on Mississippi. "Since most people make their vacation decisions during this time period, we are very encouraged by the interest in the state's tourism destinations," she said.

Barrett said that tourism generated approximately $1 billion for Mississippi's economy in 1985, which was down from 1984, an excellent year because of the nearby Louisiana World Exposition.

The increased interest from the leisure travel market this year is due to a number of factors, she believes. "The division placed more advertising this season, and more feature travel articles on Mississippi have appeared in the media," she commented.

"Additionally, convention and visitors bureaus and other state tourism industry businesses are conducting aggressive marketing programs. Lower gasoline prices and a stronger desire to travel within the U.S. are factors as well," she said.

There is also a trend toward a higher number of vacations in a year, according to 'Travel-Holiday Magazine's' 1985 National Travel Poll which noted increases in the number of travelers taking four or more trips each year.

The poll also showed that the South was still the number one destination in 1985, although the Pacific and Middle Atlantic regions gained ground over previous years.

Most convention and visitors bureaus around the state reported that since the beginning of the year, their tourism business was up or at about the same level as last year.

Welcome Center visitation figures indicate that business is already improving. For January through March, the count at the state's nine centers is up 15.9 percent over 1985. A total of 307,406 people registered at the centers during this period. "We feel this implies that Mississippi's tourism industry is headed in the right direction," Barrett concluded.

HEALTH

Dr. Allen Koskan's office has been sending Dr. Craig to our Center to do eye screening at no cost to our seniors. Medicare is accepted as full payment.

We very much appreciate this fine service as it is sometimes difficult for senior citizens to get back and forth to an office. Seniors do not have to follow up at Koskan Clinic, they are free to choose their own doctor.

We again thank the Koskan Clinic for paying for our cable TV and for our newspaper. We do like to keep informed!

Professional Home Health is going to provide an RN to take blood pressures here at our Center on the 2nd Thursday of each month. They will furnish you cards to keep your record for your doctor, or for your own information.

We do thank them for this service. This does not mean that RSVP will not still take pressures on Tuesday. This is an additional service. They will be in our office from 11 a.m. to 12 noon.

Making the movies and "making it" in the movies are the topics of "Nova" and "Frontline," respectively, on Tuesday, May 13, on Mississippi ETV.

"The Magic of Special Effects" is the "Nova" documentary scheduled for 8 p.m., Tuesday, May 13. The program probes the creation of special effects, which have mystified audiences for as long as movies have filled the screen.

The program pays special attention to three masterpieces of the art of illusion: "Return of the Jedi," "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" and "2010: The Year We Make Contact." Cameras then journey behind the scenes to George Lucas' special effects headquarters, where artists, technicians and computer specialists take amazing artificial concepts and make them look real.

The

Profit outlook improves as crop acreages decline

The outlook for crop profits could improve in 1986 if producers follow through with early planting plans and reduce acreages of the nation's major row crops.

The lower projected plantings should have a positive impact on crop profits, said Dr. Bob Williams, head of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Economics Department.

The preliminary figures were contained in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's prospective plantings report released earlier in March. In the report farmers nationwide indicated they planned to scale down acreage in 1986.

In Mississippi plantings of all major crops except corn are expected to decline in 1986.

Williams said farmers will be required to set aside larger amounts of their crop acreages this year to qualify for government payments.

"Farmers must receive government payments to get by and are reducing their acreage to meet requirements of the program," Williams said.

Williams said the prospects of smaller U.S. crops should have a positive impact on crop profits as growers move into the upcoming production season.

Grain sorghum is expected to show the most drastic decline in acreage this year. The report indicated producers nationwide plan to seed only 15.9 million acres of sorghum, 13 percent below the record crop of 18.3 million acres planted in 1985.

Sorghum plantings in Mississippi are projected at 450,000 acres, 31 percent below the 650,000 acres planted in 1985.

"This acreage reduction is not surprising," Williams said. "Profits on the crop last year were disappointing and profit prospects for this year remain poor."

Although a 9 percent decrease in cotton plantings is expected nationwide, cotton producers have a fair chance for profits this year, Williams said.

Cotton plantings in the nation are projected at 9.7 million acres, compared to 10.7 million acres in 1985.

"Current low cotton prices mean more cotton will be planted within the guidelines of government programs," Williams said. "Participation in the 1986 government cotton program will be extremely high."

The economist added that if producers follow through with their reduction plans and yields return to normal levels, U.S. cotton production could decline substantially.

"This could have some positive impact on cotton prices and cotton profit prospects for this year's crop," Williams said.

The report indicated only a 2 percent decline in soybean acreage for the nation. But Williams said he expects acreage to fall below the estimated 62 million mark.

"Unstable financial conditions and poor profit prospects will likely push soybean acreage even lower than the original estimates," Williams said.

The state's soybean crop is expected to fall 7 percent below the 1985 crop level. Producers indicated they planned to seed only 2.5 million acres of soybeans this spring, compared to 2.7 million acres in 1985.

Corn acreage in the nation is expected to decline by 6 percent to 78.1 million acres.

Williams said a larger acreage reduction program for corn and high participation in the U.S. feed grain program are reasons for the nationwide decline.

Mississippi corn acreage is projected to be up 9 percent in 1986. Plantings in the state are expected to total 175,000 acres, compared to 160,000 acres in 1985.

"Corn producers in the state have been making a profit on their corn crops," Williams said. "Yields have been good and producers feel comfortable planting corn."

Rice acreage in the nation is projected to decline by 10 percent to 2.3 million acres.

"If plantings decline by this much, U.S. rice production will likely decline also," Williams said. "Participation in the 1986 rice program is expected to be extremely high for both Mississippi and U.S. farmers."

ASCS Report

When producers sign up for the 1986 farm program, Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, tells them that sodbusting and swampbusting will result in the loss of all farm program benefits.

Sodbusting is the production of an agricultural commodity on highly erodible land that is not now in production. Swampbusting is the production of an agricultural commodity on wetlands converted for agricultural production after December 23, 1985.

"Any producer who, after December 23, 1985, brings into production a field which is predominantly highly erodible land, or who converts wetland to production of any agricultural commodity, will be ineligible on his or her entire farm or farms for any program benefit or payment," Gennin said.

Highly erodible land, and hydric soils that contribute to wetland will be identified in the county ASCS office.

Gennin said erodible land is defined as land in capability Classes 4, 6, 7 and 8, or land that if used to produce an agricultural commodity, would have an excessive rate of erosion in relation to the soil loss tolerance level.

Wetland is land that generally contains hydric soils and hydrophytic vegetation, and is inundated or saturated by surface and ground water. Converted wetland is wetland that since December 23, 1985, has been drained, dredged, filled, leveled, or otherwise manipulated for the purpose of making the land suitable for producing an agricultural commodity.

According to Gennin, there are some exemptions to the sodbusting and swampbusting provisions.

Wetlands exempted from the regulations are those used for the production of a crop on (1) wetlands converted or under conversion before December 23, 1985; (2) wetlands artificially created to provide water for livestock, fish production, rice production, irrigation, or flood control; (3) a wet area created by a water delivery or irrigation system; and (4) wetland on which production of an agricultural commodity is possible because of a natural condition such as drought.

The ASCS official said until January 1, 1990, no producer shall become ineligible for program benefits for producing a crop on highly erodible land that was cultivated to produce any of the 1985-1986 crops; set-aside, diverted or not cultivated under a farm program for production adjustment.

"The producer may be exempt if he or she requests and obtains an approved conservation plan, and the land is farmed according to the approved plan."

Other exemptions include highly erodible land planted in a crop (1) before December 23, 1985; (2) during any crop year beginning before this date; or, (3) in reliance on a determination by the Soil Conservation Service that such land was not highly erodible.

Further explanation of the sodbusting, swampbusting provisions of the Farm Act may be obtained from the local ASCS office.

On retirement planning...

Financial advisors specializing in retirement plans recommend that individuals or couples should plan and begin an investment program for retirement at least 20 years prior to retiring.

Today many people are living beyond the age of 80. Plans for funds to provide for an extended lifespan are needed. Early planning and investing is the key to providing adequate retirement income. To do such planning, the individual or couple will need to:

—Estimate the amount of income needed for the level-of-living desired and adjust it for the expected rate of inflation.

—Evaluate how adequately present provisions for retirement will meet anticipated retirement needs.

—Determine savings or investment actions that can be taken to better provide for retirement needs.

—Better manage current funds to free money for investing for retirement needs.

—Re-evaluate retirement financial plan as personal and economic changes develop—or at least every three years and make needed adjustments.

Recent laws encourage individual savings for retirement by deferring income taxes within specific limits on workers' contributions to IRAs and the self-employed's contributions to Keogh accounts.

Some of the best retirement savings plans are tax-deferred methods offered by employers. Using these permits faster accumulation of funds because the income tax currently due on the money invested is also invested to earn.

Many employers also contribute a percentage of the employee's contribution. Then at retirement the amount of income tax due is likely to be less than when the money was earned because of the lower tax bracket in which the retired is likely to be.

To provide adequate income for retirement, start early, identify realistic needs, investigate options, and take advantage of opportunities to advance your retirement income status.

If you need general information on retirement planning or help in deciding which retirement plan will best benefit you and your family, contact the Coast Consumer Management Center at 388-4710. All counseling and educational materials are free. Or contact your county Extension office.

State sets regulations for herbicide use

Herbicide drift has caused serious injury to many non-target crops during the past few years, according to Jack Coley, director of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce Division of Plant Industry.

"We have received unusually high numbers of phenoxy, or hormone-type herbicide injury complaints. As a result, our division has adopted regulations to reduce such plant injuries," Coley said.

The new regulations will make users more knowledgeable and aware of the potential hazards of phenoxy herbicides. When applied under hazardous situations, the regulations also will require the use of the most modern application equipment and technology available to reduce drift of the chemicals.

According to Coley, when the phenoxy herbicides are applied in large scale spray operations within three to five miles of highly susceptible crops, injury will occur unless applicators minimize drift. Susceptible crops include cotton, grapes, beans, tomatoes, melons and many ornamental, fruit and nut trees, which are damaged by small amounts of the herbicides.

In order to require the best methods of application, the new regulations will prohibit application of 2,4-D, Dicamba and MCPA herbicides by fixed wing aircraft through Sept. 30, 1986. Application of these herbicides only will be allowed by helicopters equipped with a special spray system designed for drift control and approved by the division.

Other regulations prohibit aerial application of ester formulations which may cause injury by volatility. Application during periods when weather and atmospheric conditions are unfavorable also will be prohibited.

New regulations also will require that State Restricted Use Pesticides, such as 2,4-D and MCPA, be used under the direct supervision of certified private or commercial applicators. Pesticide dealers will be required to keep records of sales and certified applicator information.

Injury from drift and volatility also can occur from application by ground equipment. However, present statutory authority to make regulations on application of the phenoxy herbicides is limited to aerial application, according to Coley.

For more information about phenoxy herbicide application regulations, contact Jack Coley, Division of Plant Industry, P.O. Box 5207, Mississippi State, MS 39762. Telephone: 601/325-3390.

Vets service officer reports on Jackson conference

The Spring Veterans Service Officer's Conference held on April 10 and 11 in Jackson helped clarify many questions that veterans and dependents are concerned with, according to Mike Ladner of Hancock County.

Some of the topics covered were current VA policies concerning VA benefits for service-connected and non-service-connected veterans and dependents.

Also discussed was how the current budget will affect veterans and dependent benefits.

Other topics included adjudication of claims, debt collections and requests for waivers and compromises of over-payments pertaining to VA pensions benefits, and Home Loan Guaranty Programs.

The Home Loan Program is moving fast, the current interest rate is 9.5 percent and the VA advises eligible persons to apply as soon as possible for the Home Loan Program. No indication was given how long the Home Loan Program will continue. Ambulatory care in VA hospitals, and reductions in different VA benefits were discussed.

Mississippi veterans and dependents receive an annual income of $250,000,000.

The VA is cutting back and reducing every possible way in order to continue operating effectively and maintain hospital care for the veteran and not cause the veteran any type of extra hardship.

A reduction of personnel will cause the VA to delay processing claims and other VA matters, Ladner noted.

The State Veterans Affairs Commission reduced its staff and affected a 15.5 percent reduction in operating funds.

A VA official stated, however, even with the reduced budget the VA will still maintain medical treatment for qualified veterans.

"I was informed by the Mississippi VFW department commander that Senator Grahmann addressed the VFW recently in a Washington conference and the intent to the Grahmann-Rudman-Hollings Act was not to hurt the veteran or his dependents," Ladner added.

Service-connected veterans and veterans on pensions should not be affected. Also, Senator Grahmann stated that the social security program would not be affected.

Mississippi veterans are grateful to Congressman Sonny Montgomery, the Senate and House of Representatives for unanimously passing a bill that will allow Mississippi to have a Veterans Home.

It is contemplated the Veterans Home will be completed sometime in 1988.

For further information contact Mike Ladner, Hancock County veterans service officer, 487-2100.

Mary Ann Jones

"But Lord... I Still Hurt"

A presentation of Mary Ann Jones' "HIS" Ministry, is

A challenge and encouragement to those within the Body of Christ who are hurting. This is a vehicle of Truth done through song and the spoken word, encouraging God's children in the fact that God loves us too much to shield us from our "eternal weights of Glory". It encourages us to be honest with Him in our desire to be rid of the pain, yet submissive to whatever His will may be, for our PERFECTING and CORRECTING. This challenge discourages a passive attitude of hopelessness and encourages an active attitude of yieldedness. It relates to everyone, each to our own level of hurt, regardless of the cause.

"HIS" Ministry with Mary Ann Jones will be coming to First Baptist Church on Main St., May 4, 1986, at 11:00 a.m.

THE PRESENT DANGER OF UNBELIEF

The author of the book of Hebrews urges, "Let us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any one of you should seem to come short of it." (Heb. 4:1) The fear of which the writer speaks is the fear of losing eternal life. Though hope is built on a promise, one might not meet the conditions of the promise.

Those to whom the Hebrew letter was written had obeyed the first conditions of the promise. In chapter six and verses one and two, they were told, "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance, repentance from dead works and faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms..." Jesus stated, "I said therefore unto you, that ye shall die in your sins: for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins." (John 8:24).

All obedience is built on faith. Faith leads to repentance. (Lk. 13:3) Faith causes one to confess his faith before men. (Rom. 10:9-10) Faith prompts one to be buried with his Lord in baptism. (Mk. 16:16; Acts 2:38; Acts 22:16; Rom. 6:3-4; Gal. 3:26-27; I Pet. 3:21) The Lord added the saved to the church. (Acts 2:47) There were some who had heard the gospel preached, but it did not have the desired effect. "...but the word preached unto them did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it." (Heb. 4:2) Hearing the gospel is essential to salvation, but if the hearer does not allow the gospel to produce faith in the message of the gospel, the hearer does not profit.

There is a rest for those who believe, "For we which have believed do enter into rest, as he said, as I swear in my wrath, if they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world." (Heb. 4:3) The author speaks of the rest in the present tense.

The faith is a comprehensive faith. It includes obedience. It is certainly more than mental assent that God is one. James says, "The devils believe and tremble." (Jas. 2:19) This faith is a willingness "to be ready to every good work." (Titus 3:1)

The Jews as a whole did not believe the gospel of Christ. Our author stated, "...and they to whom it was first preached entered not in because of unbelief." (Heb. 4:6) On the day the gospel was first preached three thousand responded in obedience. The church grew and multiplied. (Acts 5:14; Acts 6:7) On Paul's first missionary journey, there was opposition from the Jews. "Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and said, it was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken unto you; but seeing ye put it from you, judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles." (Acts 13:46)

The book of Hebrews was written to Christians of Jewish descent. They were in danger of apostasy from Christ back to Moses. This condition of apostasy was an immediate danger (2:1), based upon unbelief (3:12), conduct (5:13-14), neglect of public worship (10:15), weakness in prayer (12:12), instability in doctrine (13:9), refusal to teach others (2:1).

Pir author called upon them to let their hearts be tender to the message of God. "Again, he limiteth a certain day, saying in, David, today, after so long a time; as it is said, today if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts." (Heb. 4:11)

We must labor therefore in the vineyard of God. To the Ephesians Paul wrote, "For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works." (Eph. 2:10) The phrase "fall after the same example of unbelief" refers to statements in the previous chapter. "Wherefore as the Holy Ghost saith, today if ye will hear my voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, in the day of temptation in the wilderness: when your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works forty years." (Heb. 3:7-9)

As the children of Israel fell, so Christians can fall. We must strengthen our faith every day. We either go forward or backward in our faith. We do not stand still.

ETV Brief

COMEDY SERIES

"Mapp & Lucia" a delightful four-part comedy series about the rivalry between two women in 1920s British society, will air on Mississippi at 8 p.m., Thursdays, beginning May 15. The series chronicles the relationship between Miss Elizabeth Mapp, the reigning queen of Tilling-on-Sea, and Mrs. Emmeline Lucas (known as Lucia), an upstart prima donna who comes to town and attempts to overthrow the established order. The battles that follow give an amusing, sometimes hilarious insight into village life in all its trivial glory.

"Mapp & Lucia" is based on the characters from six E.F. Benson novels and stars Geraldine McEwan as Lucia and Prunella Scales as Mapp.

Deadline for registration is May 25.

- Box securely anchored to post
- Box number at least 1 inch high on side of flag.
- Groups of boxes must have numbers on door of box.
- Flowering plants at base of post.

Story programs for pre-school children are presented Thursdays at 10:30 a.m. at City-County Library on US 90 and Fridays at 10:30 a.m. at Waveland Library on Coleman Avenue.
